EDUCATIONAL PROGRAMS FOR THE WORLD OF CERAMICS: MASTERPIECES FROM THE CLEVELAND MUSEUM OF ART

EDUCATIONAL EXHIBITION:

The Porcelain Connection runs from June 22 through August 15, providing background information for the special exhibition by exploring the relationships between Eastern and Western ceramics. In the 17th and 18th centuries, Dutch and English trade ships seeking silk and spices in the Far East also brought back Chinese and Japanese porcelains. Captivated by the translucent ceramic, wealthy Europeans collected it, painters included it in still lifes, and potters attempted to recreate it, often experimenting with exotic concoctions, until one of them succeeded in 1708. Organized by Marjorie Williams, assistant curator in the Department of Art History and Education, the exhibition contains eighteen porcelains, two oil paintings, and two photo murals of imperial tapestries which illustrate and explain the technological and stylistic exchanges inspired by the trade between Europe and the Orient.
